

C3 Consulting Launches “the engine”; moves headquarters

Nashville, TN., August 30, 2011 — C3 Consulting recently opened the engine, a creative new meeting space designed for teams to gather, dream, plan and grow. The collaboration center is housed adjacent to the firm’s new corporate offices in the heart of Nashville on Sidco Drive.

the engine was specially designed to accommodate organizations seeking a professional, contemporary and comfortable alternative for meeting space. The facility provides space for groups of 10-100+ with two conference rooms holding 12-18 persons and two larger rooms holding 25-35 people. In addition, an open atrium can host larger gatherings or end-of-day regroups.

“the engine is much more than a basic meeting space,” said Janet McDonald, C3 principal. “Our hope is that professional and community organizations use the space for problem-solving, strategic planning, team building and a variety of other meetings that help them move forward in positive and creative ways. Our staff is focused on making group interaction turnkey, no-hassle events.”

In addition to hosting group events, C3 will use the engine to lead professional development classes, strategic planning sessions, facilitations, and provide other consulting services. “We have provided consulting and facilitation services for years,” said McDonald. “the engine enables us to build upon these critical services while providing a creative facility and adding niche professional development opportunities. We also are thrilled to provide our growing team a great new space to connect and problem-solve.”

the engine is conveniently located at 2975 Sidco Drive, Nashville, TN 37204. For additional information on the engine, go to www.c3-consult.com/theengine or call 615.371.8612.
